

At SRMS convocation, students told to adopt new treatment methods

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Bareilly: During the seventh convocation ceremony at Shri Ram Murti Smarak, 100 MBBS students, 56 postgraduate students and 165 paramedical students were awarded degrees on Saturday. Besides, toppers were additionally awarded medals and cash prizes.

The convocation ceremony was organized for the students of SRMS Institute of Medical Sciences and SRMS Institute of Paramedical Sciences. Dev Murti, chairman of SRMS trust, encouraged students to work in rural areas and provide treatment in villages to the poor and downtrodden. He advised students to update themselves with new research and techniques as it will help them in treating patients.

Saroj Chooramani Gopal, professor of pediatric surgery, IMS BHU, Varanasi, who was the chief guest at the event, talked about how the invention of new machines and techniques and development of nuclear medicines is helping in treatment of serious diseases. Gopal asked students to regularly include new techniques in their service to ensure better treatment of patients.

A total of 100 MBBS students and 56 postgraduate students were awarded their degrees on Saturday

Professor Anil Shukla, vice-chancellor of Mahatma Jyotiba Phule Rohilkhand University, was also present at the event.